ANOTHER TWO MILLION AUSSIE-OWNED BIODEGRADABLE NAPPIES ON ORDER FOLLOWING STRONG DEMAND

Clean technology company, EcoQuest Limited (ASX: ECQ), has placed orders for another two million of its 90 per cent biodegradable disposable nappies following surging demand for the Australian-owned product.

This follows the Perth-based company's announcement last week of its maiden production order of one million nappies for our Little Takas range, with that inaugural shipment due to arrive in Australia in mid-September ahead of the nappies going on sale to consumers across the nation in October.

The second order of two million nappies is expected to arrive in Australia late in November, EcoQuest said today.

"The strong interest already being shown by our trade customers for our Little Takas range of nappies is most pleasing," EcoQuest Chairman, Ms Sylvia Tulloch, said today.

"Our product has one of the highest ratings of biodegradability of any disposable nappy in the world and we are confident of maintaining the current upward momentum in demand – especially as more and more people become aware of our range of nappies and their contribution to addressing the huge environmental problem caused by traditional disposable nappies," she said.

"As part of the expanding demand for the nappies, EcoQuest is committed to providing supply chain excellence that in turn ensures both retailers and customers are satisfied and that we have sufficient supplies in our burgeoning 'production pipeline'."

EcoQuest announced earlier this month that it had signed retail distribution agreements for its nappies with retail brokerage firms PSSM and Strikeforce WA to act as the company's sales agents throughout mainland Australia.

Both distribution companies have widespread expertise, including successfully negotiating sales and distribution agreements for other products with national retail giants such as Coles, Woolworths, Target, Metcash and IGA.

EcoQuest is focused on developing and applying the latest technologies to create products with improved environmental benefits, but still maintaining excellent consumer performance.

The first product in the EcoQuest range is a 90% biodegradable nappy designed for composting, which combines all the performance benefits of current market leading nappies with additional benefits for babies and our environment.

EcoQuest nappies have been tested in accordance with Australian Standard AS4736-2006 Biodegradable Plastics. At the conclusion of six months independent scientific testing, the nappies achieved 90% of the maximum theoretical value for biodegradation.

A rigorous program of independent consumer testing of the new nappy with mothers and their babies has now also been completed, with strong results. It has already received strong interest from potential commercial customers throughout the world.

EcoQuest's intellectual property is focused on non-woven disposable products. Further products in planning include biodegradable disposal nappy sacks and incontinence products.
